General information

The Illinois Department of Revenue's education program provides instruction in areas where the department has a direct involvement in the assessment process. Most of these courses focus on using the department's Illinois Real Property Appraisal Manual. Other courses deal with basic mapping for assessors, the complete property tax cycle, math calculations used in the assessing profession, the department's procedures for developing equalization factors, and conducting a sales ratio study and its use in reassessments.

Anyone may participate in these classes, all of which are free.

Classes are conducted at various locations throughout the state. Upon request, the department will conduct courses at locations other than those listed in the schedule, provided teaching staff is available and 25 or more students are enrolled. An adequate, handicap-accessible classroom facility with an overhead projector and a projection screen must be provided.

Most classes are two-day courses with an examination given in the afternoon of the second day. The "Board of Review – Basic Course" and the "Township Assessor – Introductory Course" are two-and-one-half day courses with the exam held on the morning of the third day.

CIAO designation elective courses and continuing education courses

The following IDOR classes may be used to satisfy the elective requirements for obtaining the Certified Illinois Assessing Officer (CIAO) designation:

- ▶ I-M — Introduction to Mapping for Assessors

- ▶ I-A — Introduction to Residential Assessment Practices

In addition, all department courses with the exception of the "Board of Review – Basic Course" and the "Township Assessor – Introductory Course" have been approved for 15 hours of examination credit toward the CIAO continuing education requirement. See Page 17 for additional information on the CIAO designation.

Education 2000 Program Changes

The Illinois Department of Revenue and the 2004 Joint Committee on Reviewing Education 2000 announce the following Education 2000 Program Changes:

- 1 Level 2 maximum hours per category expanded - You are no longer restricted to a maximum of 60 hours per category for Level 2. Instead, you may now take a maximum of 120 hours in a single category.
- 2 Level 2 “refresher” coursework - You must take any eligible Level 2 course for which you have not previously received credit if you have completed either
 - ▶ 120 hours credit in Level 3 continuing education coursework or
 - ▶ 600 total hours continuing education coursework.
- 3 New topic, assessment methodology, or technology exception - If you have already taken the maximum number of hours in a particular level or category, you may take one additional course in that level or category every five years, if you meet the following requirements:
 - ▶ You have not taken the class previously.
 - ▶ You receive approval from the Illinois Department of Revenue. To receive approval, write a letter to the department that explains why the course is relevant to your current position and jurisdiction (e.g., Our office will begin using GIS and this class will help facilitate successful transition to that technology.”).

Note: If you have 10 years’ or more experience, you may take two courses (one for each five years’ experience), but you may take only one class every five years thereafter.

These changes have been made in response to concern that the original Education 2000 program was too restrictive. We believe that these program modifications do not compromise the original goals of Education 2000 and that the changes will encourage you to continue your assessment administration education.

To help you find department-approved courses and locations, the department is adding a new feature to its web site that will list all approved courses and the provider’s contact information (including a link to the web site, if available). You should monitor the site frequently because the page will be updated each time a new course is approved.

We are committed to a relevant continuing education program for assessment officials. To that end, we will review the Education 2000 Program again in 2007.

Education 2000 Program Information

General information

The Education 2000 Program marked the beginning of the new continuing education program for members of the assessing community. The program provides assessing officials the framework and direction necessary to personalize their continuing education. Within the program, courses have been analyzed for content and assigned to six general categories. In addition to the categories within each category, courses have been slotted into three levels.

Categories

- ▶ Administration: Administration of the assessment office and computer usage
- ▶ Commercial: Assessment of commercial and industrial property
- ▶ Land: Assessment of land; assessment of farmland; mapping; and GIS
- ▶ Theory: Assessment and appraisal theory; legal issues; legislative issues
- ▶ Residential: Assessment of residential property
- ▶ Statistics: Use of math and statistics in the assessment process

Hours per level and category

- Level 1: 180 hours maximum, with up to 45 hours per category
- Level 2: 300 hours maximum, with up to 120 hours per category
- Level 3: No restrictions

Once an assessing official has achieved the designated number of either examination or seminar hours for a given category or level, he or she will advance to a new category or level to earn continuing education credits for a stipend. Students may take upper level courses without first completing all hours in the lower levels and return to the lower levels as long as they still have hours available.

Explanation of the three levels

Level 1: Level one courses generally require little or no prior experience or knowledge. Level one courses introduce a basic topic, concept, or theory. Level one includes basic course administration, residential, commercial, land, statistics, and theory. Level one will generally include the following: basic appraisal theory, introduction of the three approaches to value, non-complex residential, commercial, and industrial properties, farmland, basic office administration, and introductory computer classes. Introductory material is featured in this study level. Exams reflect the course material and are of sufficient complexity to warrant credit. There may be several courses that introduce this information. Various organizations may provide different approaches to topics that are somewhat similar in scope, yet when combined give the students a broader base on which to build their skills.

Level 2: Level two courses will usually require some prior experience or knowledge. Level two courses primarily build on materials introduced in the level one categories. This level builds upon the basics and brings the student to a tangibly higher level of expertise. This level may include limited review of basic materials. Courses generally include intermediate concepts, intermediate administrative principles, intermediate computer applications, intermediate theory, and intermediate coverage of the three approaches to value. Level two explores appraisal problems of more complex properties, such as complex residential properties, and commercial/industrial properties of medium complexity. Concepts covered in courses in this level could usually be expanded for in-depth study for level three. Level two courses may require prerequisites. Level two exams should accurately reflect the complexity of the course material and should be clearly more challenging than level one exams.

Level 3: Level three courses will generally require a strong background or understanding and will be most likely to require a prerequisite. Level three courses generally build upon concepts covered in level two. These courses will deal with more difficult concepts within the various categories of properties, appraisal processes, and statutory requirements. Courses in level three will generally include advanced assessment or appraisal concepts, advanced theory, advanced administrative practices, advanced computer applications, advanced coverage of the three approaches to value, valuation of special use properties using advanced techniques, and complex application-oriented projects. Level three studies could examine the valuation of complex shopping centers, complex manufacturing structures, and special use properties. Level three exams should accurately reflect the complexity of course material and should be clearly more challenging than level two exams.

The requirements for township or multi-township assessors are generally based upon the equalized assessed value (EAV) of the assessment jurisdiction. Individuals who are being appointed to fill a vacancy must also meet the applicable education requirements.

Introductory assessment jurisdiction

In an introductory assessment jurisdiction with $10 million or less in non-farm EAV and less than $1 million in commercial and industrial EAV, Section 2-45(b) of the Property Tax Code (35 ILCS 200/2-45(b)) requires that a candidate must possess one of the following qualifications:

Stipend Information

Training stipends — Under Section 4-10 of the Property Tax Code (35 ILCS 200/4-10), the department awards $500 per year to any supervisor of assessments in counties with less than 3 million inhabitants and in which no county assessor has been elected under Section 3-45 (35 ILCS 200/3-45), township assessor, multi-township assessor, deputy assessor, or board of review member who has been awarded a Certified Illinois Assessing Officers designation from the Illinois Property Assessment Institute.

Under Section 4-15 of the Illinois Property Tax Code (35 ILCS 200/4-15), the department awards $500 per year to any supervisor of assessments, township assessor, multi-township assessor, deputy assessor, or board of review member who has earned a Certified Assessment Evaluator certificate from the International Association of Assessing Officers. In addition, the department awards $250 per year to any supervisor of assessments, township assessor, multi-township assessor, deputy assessor, or board of review member who has been awarded a Residential Evaluation Specialist, Assessment Administration Specialist, or Cadastral Mapping Specialist certificate by the International Association of Assessing Officers, but who has not been awarded a Certified Assessment Evaluator certificate. To continue to be eligible for additional compensation, a supervisor of assessments, township assessor, multi-township assessor, deputy assessor, or board of review member must successfully complete a minimum of 30 hours of qualified continuing education classes. (At least 15 of the 30 hours must be examination credit.)

The Illinois Department of Revenue is responsible for approving courses for the continuing education stipend. The department has approved over 900 courses for continuing education credit from over 100 appraisal organizations, universities, and community colleges.

To qualify for the continuing education, a course must deal with the cost, market, and income approaches to value; mass appraisal techniques; property tax administration; business and computer techniques as required Section 4-10. The course must be of adequate substance to warrant approval for continuing education. The department reserves the right to reevaluate approved courses and change the amount or type of credit if the situation so warrants.

To request course approval for courses not approved by the department previously, please submit a copy of the course description, outline, time slots for each topic, dates for the course, and copies of all course handouts and materials. In order to receive examination credit, the Illinois Department of Revenue must have a copy of course examinations. Examinations must be stringent enough to warrant examination credit. If no exams are provided, the course may still qualify for seminar credit.

It is the individual's responsibility to provide the department with documentation to verify successful completion of any course not offered by the IPAI or Illinois Department of Revenue.

If there are any questions concerning the approval of any courses for continuing education, contact Rebecca Redenbo at the Illinois Department of Revenue at 217 785-7311, or e-mail her at rredenbo@revenue.state.il.us.
